CONDUCTOR COOK FATALLY INJURED

Thrown From Top of Car When Air Pump Bursts.

WHEELS PASS OVER HIM

Rushed to Hospital on Special Train, but Death Soon Ensues.

Times-Dispatch Bureau, 5 Hollingsbrook Street, (Telephone 1435)

Petersburg, Va., August 9. Wm. A. Cook, a conductor employed on the Norfolk and Western Railroad, was fatally injured this morning at Sutherland, a station on the Norfolk and Western, in Dinwiddie County. He was in charge of a western bound freight train, and was standing on a gondola, which was in front of a locomotive being shifted, when the air pump burst, and he was thrown overboard, crushing both legs between the tracks and wheels. A special train was at once summoned, and he was brought to the hospital in this city. Railroad surgeons operated upon him, amputating the right leg at the thigh. Conductor Cook lingered until 3:30 o'clock this evening when he died.

Mrs. Cook was born and lived in Petersburg, and was a valued employee of the railroad, for which he had been working since a boy. On Sunday he took charge of the Triby excursion which runs from Richmond to Norfolk. He is survived by his wife, one daughter and a son, Howard Cook, of Lambert Point.

Succeeds Rev. J. P. Riddle. Rev. Flourney Boulding, rector of Antrim parish, Halifax County, has been elected a member of the faculty of the Bishop Payne Divinity School, of this city, to succeed Rev. J. P. Riddle, who recently resigned to become rector of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Richmond. Though he has not indicated what he will do in the matter, it is understood that he will accept the position. He is the son of the late Judge Boulding, of Charlotte County, and reputed to possess great ability as a teacher and preacher.

Unknown Man Killed. The Cannon Ball train yesterday evening killed and unknown colored man, midway between Centralia and Manchester. After leaving Centralia the engineer noticed two men on the track; one of them stepped from the tracks as the train approached. For

HE'S ABLE TO RESTORE ANCIENT PEERAGE

New Earl of Ferrers, Through His Wife, Is Very Rich Man.

BY LA MARQUE DE FONTENAY.

FORTUNATELY, the new Earl of Ferrers, eleventh of his line, an architect by profession, is a very rich man through his wife, the daughter and heiress of the late Robert Moon, and will therefore be able to restore, in a measure, the fortunes of this peerage, which has been so closely identified throughout English history with the maintenance and care of the famous herd of long-horned wild white cattle.

The family is one that has many American associations, and the new Lord Ferrers can boast of the same descent as the first President of the United States; for the first Earl Ferrers, the present family married Elizabeth, only child and heiress of Laurence Washington. The latter's elder brother, Robert Washington, was Lord of the Manor of Sulgrave and ancestor of George Washington in the direct male line. A namesake of the new Lord Ferrers, and a member of the family of which he is now the chief, is that Walter Shirley, who was a Colonial Governor of Massachusetts and commander-in-chief of the British forces in America at the beginning of those troubles between the colonies and the mother country which culminated in the War of Independence.

The town of Shirley, near Groton, in Massachusetts, is named after him. The Ferrers peerage and the Chartley Park property, with the herd of wild cattle, came into the Shirley family through the marriage of Sir Henry Shirley, who was a member of the family of Lord Essex, who was also Lord Ferrers. On Essex's death his barony of Ferrers fell into abeyance, whence it was recalled by Charles II. in favor of Sir Robert Shirley, grandson of Lady Dorothy Devereux. Subsequently Charles II. advanced him to the dignities of Viscount Tamworth and Earl Ferrers. It is unnecessary to recall here the description of the crime of the fourth Earl, who, after trial by his peers in the House of Lords, in 1760, and sentence to death, drove to the gallows at Tyburn, where the Marble Arch now stands, in his state coach-and-six, namely, the carriage all gilded and painted, that was otherwise used at court functions, at coronations and for the opening of Parliament.

It was at his execution that the drop was used for the first time in England, in the place of the old system of cart and ladder. The drop, it is reported, did not work very well. It is on record that "the earl's toes touched the ground, and that he suffered a little, having time to raise the cap; but the executioner pulled it down again and then pulled his legs so that he was soon out of pain and quite dead in four minutes." After he had been left hanging for an hour, he was hurried to Old St. Pancras churchyard, where twenty years later his remains were disinterred and conveyed to the family mausoleum at Staunton Harold, near Ashby-de-la-Zouche, where they now repose.

This particular earl was separated from his wife, and as she refused to hold any communication with him after her arrest and trial, he cursed her on the scaffold and predicted for her a terrible death by fire. After his death she married Lord Frederick Campbell, brother of the then Duke of Argyll, and lived for nearly fifty years subsequently. But she was always haunted by the terrible curse of her first husband, and her fears increased with age, so much so, that she caused a suite of steeple rooms to be specially prepared for her, at considerable expense, at her house of Coombe Bank.

Despite these precautions, she was burned to death in her bed; for, having fallen asleep while reading, the chimney hangings of her bed caught fire at the lamp standing by her bedside, and she was consumed in a few minutes. This took place a hundred years ago.

With regard to the Chartley herd of wild cattle identified with the fortunes of the family of Ferrers, nothing very definite is known of its origin, except that they were driven into Chartley Park, in Staffordshire, from the neighboring royal forest of Needwood during the reign of Henry III., and contemporary records dealing with the sojourn of Mary Queen of Scots at Chartley Hall refer to the cattle, as being then already of very ancient descent.
